

Final Video in Our Five-Part Series:

What happens to money left in an ABLÉ Account or Special Needs Trust after the person with a disability dies?

People with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD) and their families must plan for the future, which includes having a financial plan. To help you begin to understand some of the financial resources you may want to consider, The Arc's Center for Future Planning has developed a series of videos about special needs trusts and ABLÉ accounts.

In our newest video, you will learn what happens to money in an ABLÉ account or special needs trust when the person with a disability who has the account dies. We explain rules that Medicaid has about what happens and what you should know when you set up the account.

Click below to watch the new video and to see the other videos in the financial planning playlist.

How Death Affects the Money Left in ABLE Accounts and Special Needs Trusts

Presented by The Arc's
Center for Future Planning

View all videos

These videos are also available in Spanish.

Questions? Contact futureplanning@thearc.org.

For people with intellectual and developmental disabilities

The Arc promotes and protects the human rights of people with intellectual and developmental disabilities and actively supports their full inclusion and participation in the community throughout their lifetimes.